The target audience of this event is mainly students, however it's open to all, and we will see a variety of stakeholders attending including McGill faculty and staff. The event is to highlight the launch of the Sustainability Module and Climate Action & Climate Crisis course, both of which have been collaborative efforts between administrative staff, senior leaders, students, and faculty members, many of whom will be attending the event. The event will be co-hosted by the McGill Office of Sustainability and Teaching and Learning Services, and will be advertised widely to generate as much interest as possible.
